Fixed and Free poets

Billy Brown's life purpose is joy, which he pursues via singing, baking & catering, poetry, and mathematics education. Fixed and Free Poetry Anthology 2015 is his fourth book, following Brown Eyes and Beth Hugs: A Daddy Remembers His Daughter, Poetic Sketches, and Fixed and Free Poetry Anthology 2011. Sunday Chatter Poems and Pastries, will appear in a few months.

Elene Gusch has three chapbooks of poetry, Cosmic Radio, The Fine Art of Living in the Past, and Love in Undefined Spaces, and has appeared in The Rag, and other local anthologies. She blogs about spiritual and social matters at elenedom.wordpress.com. She is a former professional musician and music teacher. As a dancer, she hopes to be poetry in motion.

Donald DeNoon started writing poetry in sixth grade and continued hiccuping it off and on throughout life. His work has appeared in ABQ Arts, The New Mexico Breeze, Language of Enchantment, The Rag, SouthWest Sage, and numerous anthologies including Adobe Walls #5.

Mary Dudley earned an M.A. (SUNY, Stony Brook, English), moved to NM, and earned a Ph.D. (UNM, Ed.Psych.). She's published three chapbooks. Her poems have appeared in A Good Place to Stumble Upon; Sin Fronteras; La Llorona; The Other Side; 200 NM Poems and the Rag.

Tony Mares (1938-2015) published five books of poetry: The Unicorn Poem; With the Eyes of a Raptor; Astonishing Light; Rio Del Corazón; and translations of poems by the Spanish poet Ángel González, Casi Toda la Música y otros poemas/Almost All the Music and Other Poems.

Jill A. Oglesby lives in Los Lunas, NM, where she is owned by one cat person, Ms. Binks, and one dog person, Buíochas, whose name means "gratitude" in Gaelic.

Denise Weaver Ross is a poet and artist living and working in Albuquerque. In 2012, she published Midwest by Northeast by Southwest -- her first book of art and poetry. She is now working on a four-part art and poetry series of books based on her artistic and poetic reinterpretation of the deck of cards.
