Megan Baldrige Spoken Word

Megan Baldrige is an Albuquerque poet who has published poetry books about her dog and our president. Her poems explore the inexplicable nuances of life, like the still unsolved mystery of why she and her dog were so disobedient on their walks in the bosque. She is semi-retired from teaching children and adolescents and semi-interested in growing beautiful flowers, improving her Spanish accent, learning from other local poets, docenting at the fantastic Albuquerque Museum, and knitting the perfect pair of socks, each of which matches the other. Shout-out to son Diego and friends Jules Nyquist and Pamela Michaelis for their sage poetry advice and help with commas.

Impromptu (1903)

George Enescu (1881–1955)

Celebration of Silence :: Two Minutes

Violin Sonata no. 2 (1943–44)

Sergei Prokofiev (1891–1953)

- I Moderato
- II Presto
- III Andante
- IV Allegro con brio
