Sylvia Ramos Cruz Spoken Word

Sylvia Ramos Cruz writes inspired by art, women's lives, and everyday injustices. Her work reflects her life in Puerto Rico, New York, New Mexico. Her award-winning photographs, prose, poetry, and historical essays appear in local and national publications. Among these are Choice Words: Writers on Abortion, Southwestern American Literature, PoetryBay, and Artemis. This year, three New Mexico publications include her works: One Albuquerque, One Hundred Poets: Poets in the Library Anthology, New Mexico Poetry Anthology 2023, and Open-Hearted Horizon: An Albuquerque Poetry Anthology. Her Poetry/Photo mixed media work, Trilogy: Albuquerque Railyards 2018, is in the City of Albuquerque Public Arts Collection. Present writing focuses on personal essays and the history of woman suffrage in New Mexico. She is a retired surgeon, world traveler and women's rights activist still working to get the Equal Rights Amendment into the Constitution.
