Cathryn McGill

Spoken Word

Cathryn McGill is a respected nonprofit leader, cultural strategist, and award-winning advocate dedicated to community development using the arts as a tool. As the Founder/Director of the New Mexico Black Leadership Council, McGill is committed to building sustainable infrastructure that supports Black New Mexicans while fostering true multiculturalism in NM. A dynamic producer, performer, and storyteller, McGill has founded transformative initiatives, including the NM Black History Organizing Committee, Rainbow Studio Theater and the Roots Conservatory, culturally relevant programming focused on improving self-esteem and leadership qualities for youth aged 8–16. Through her work, McGill embodies the role of a cultural griot—a storyteller and unifier—leveraging the power of arts-based community development to strengthen historically excluded communities from the inside out.
