Tess Light Spoken Word

Tess Light very recently retired after almost 27 years at Los Alamos National Laboratory, where she worked in radio frequency remote sensing for the purpose of verifying nuclear testing treaties. She received the Los Alamos Medal for service to Global Security Missions in 2021, and was named a Fellow of the Laboratory in 2023. She holds a PhD in astrophysics, is an avid, if unsuccessful, gardener, and has recently decided that she'd also like to be an inexpert painter. Ever the dilettante, Tess is also a playwright whose work tends to juxtapose the scientific with the magical. She has had plays produced around the world, and some of her work is available at stagescripts.com.
